VPApps Expands Staff With Industry Veterans

Portland, OR – June 21, 2017 -   VPApps, LLC., a provider of software tools that help construction firms get more value from their existing systems, announced today that it has expanded its staff with the addition of Anthony Mavricos and Todd Weber. Both Anthony and Todd had previous experience working at Viewpoint Construction Software.

Anthony Mavricos has joined VPApps after working for nearly 4 years with Viewpoint in their Integration and Customization Services group as a Database Specialist. At Viewpoint, Anthony worked with numerous clients in developing custom solutions to enhance Vista's capabilities. Prior to his time at Viewpoint, Anthony worked in a number of industries providing database support and development always with an eye of finding solutions to the myriad tasks that system users require to be productive.

"I'm thrilled for the opportunity to come on-board with VPApps. Their product line represents many years of understanding the challenges that Construction Industry users face in trying to make decisions based on the best available data, and delivering the tools that help them harness that data," said Mavricos.

Todd Weber, another software industry veteran, has also joined VPApps.   Todd has done development for a variety of industries and had a successful consulting firm in the Seattle area for 12 years before moving to the Portland. Todd joined Viewpoint's conversion group in 2013 prior to transitioning to the Integration and Customization group where he focused on custom integrations with Vista and a variety of other projects for clients.

"We are excited to have both Anthony and Todd joining our team. Their background working with customers to develop software and reports, and their knowledge of Vista make them both valuable additions to our team," said Robert Sutor, Founder of VPApps.
